ASUS HEADS ELECTED; CURE SEEN

With this year's class elections finally written into the record books, the president of the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society promised yesterday a strong attempt to clear up "inherant discrepencies" in the electoral system.

Don MacSween told The Daily that compulsory registration in the society would take place at student registration, if present plans go through.

Unfortunate Circumstances

He said "unfortunate circumstances" caused a disorder in this year's elections that was "purely constitutional in character."

A second set of elections last Friday returned Claire Cassidy, BSc II, as second year president, and John Sanderson, BA IV, as fourth year president.

Dennis Regan, BA I, and Chris Byrd, BA III, had been acclaimed previously as first and third year presidents respectively.

Other Officers

Other officers elected were Iris Blatt, ASUS corresponding secretary; and Henri Lafleur, fourth year treasurer.

A vice president and secretary remain to be selected to the fourth year executive.

Miss Cassidy won out over five other candidates, while two contested the fourth year office.

MacSween pointed to an arts and science constitution" in need of revision as the bane of this year's election mixup.

No Chance Yet

"The whole system exists from pre-war days, and hasn't been substantially changed since. But since the war, there has been a large amount of centralization under the SEC, leaving our setup in need of revision.

"It requires that we elect class presidents in November, and the electoral lists aren't ready until December. Thus there is an inherent discrepancy in the system.

Cleared Up

"But if our present plans go through, I can promise that all of this trouble will be cleared up for next year," he said.

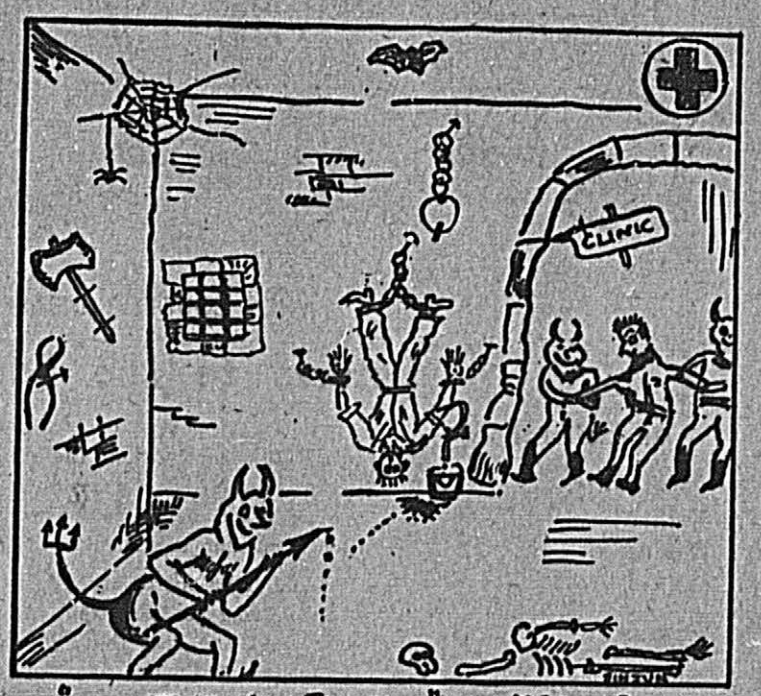
Caught With Pints Down, McGill Gives 204 Bottles



"..... IT IS NOT PAINFUL." — McGILL DAILY.

The Blood Committee announces yesterday's total number of pints collected — 204 — as probably "the lowest amount of blood ever given for one day in the history of the Blood Clinic at McGill".

This amount brings the total number of pints amassed so far to 1888, 567 less than McGill needs to win the Birk's Trophy.

Tony Straessle, Committee Chairman, commented that not even the presence of Ned Conlon and his "Spinarama" which was broadcast from the Clinic between the hours of 5 and 6 pm could interest students to donate and participate in the program. Not more than 10 donations were received within the hour.

It has been calculated that the Clinic would have to work at full speed today, at the rate of 90 students per hour, in order to reach the objective. Students are once again urged, both by the Red Cross and the Blood Committee, to stage an all-out drive today and make this first campus-wide event a success.

Once again Bloody Mary has been stolen. The last place she was known to be was in the Engineering Bldg. where a group of students were dressing her in preparation for her appearance in Birk's window. Bloody Mary is scheduled to be put on display starting November 4. Her immediate return to the Blood Clinic is requested by the Committee.

Last year Bloody Mary vanished after she had been given to the Engineers for their winning of the Undergraduate competition. Just as mysteriously she reappeared this year at the commencement of the Clinic.

As competition for the Inter-fraternity Cup is run on a straight percentage basis, it is possible that a fraternity with a smaller number of actual pints but a correspnding larger percent of members donating may win over another group with a greater number of brothers. On this basis, the competition now stands:

NATIONALISM DISCUSSED AS THIRD WARD TALK ENDS BEATTY SERIES

by Andy Ross

The social, political, and moral relationships that exist between East and West — and their possible future — were discussed last night by Mrs. Barbara Ward Jackson, in this year's third and final Beatty Memorial Lecture.

The first problem of world political relationships is nationalism, she said. "It is a deeper basic emotional force than communism and consequently is a greater enemy of world coordination and integration."

The largest crowd of all three nights attended Mrs. Jackson's closing lecture in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium.

She deemed as essential that "We overcome the problem of nationalism. If we do not we will perish ;for in nationalism, we find the high road to diasaster and extinction."

Mrs. Jackson then discussed the possible devising of an institution which would transcend this sovereign nationalism. She felt it up to the West to take the initiative in this matter, as it was the Western nations which had had the "needles of nationalism" longest.

"It is true that there is something slightly repugnant to most people in the idea of international control of system, but it is essential that we find some system for successfully conciliating disputes without the use of force," she said.

Mrs. Jackson also thought that the development of these international institutions would in some measure be an answer to the problem of communism. "Instead of spending all our time finding out what the communists are doing," she said, "we would then have the communists asking what we were doing."

LAUNAY SPEAKS

North African Tension

By Marv Goldenberg

Professor Launay, Chairman of the Department of Romance Languages, addressed the Current Affairs Club on the explosive situation in North Africa. Professor Launay toured France last summer and gained wide experience on this subject by contact with both the French and some of the many North African living in France as French citizens.

Geographical

He said that North Africa is divided into three states, Tunisia, Morocco, and Algeria, and the whole problem of North Africa must be considered in the light of the separate and quite unique problems of each state. The whole situation results in one feud between the Islam and French interests but the feud in each state results in a slightly different way.

Tunisia is the smallest state. It is independent in its rule but it is associated with France. The head of the state is the Balif of Tunisia and he rules with a Parliament and a committee of French citizens. In order to show that France is willing to lose Tunisia completely, it says that it will support her if she applies for membership in the United Nations. Because of this independence there is not as much trouble as in the other states. The one and only trouble lies in the fact that the Tunisians, like all backward people opposed to modernization which the French are constantly

CRITICS DISCUSS

'IS MODERN MUSIC A PROBLEM CHILD?'

by Eric Rennert

The second in the series of informal panel discussions, "The Critics Speak", was held in the Union yesterday afternoon. The moderator was Alexander Brott, and the critics present were H. P. Bell of the Herald, Thomas Archer of the Gazette, and Eric McLean of the Star. The other prominent members of the panel were Helmut Blume, musicologist, Giles Potvin of the CBC, and Dr. W. Hitschfeld of the McGill Physics department.

The discussion was based on a question proposed by Mr. Brott — "Is modern music a problem child?" Using this question as a guide, the discussion ranged in subject matter anywhere from the musical background of a Judy Garland motion picture to the harmonic motion of eighteenth century pastoral hymns. The many comments brought forth by members of the audience definitely showed that the series is mose worthwhile, and Mr. Brott stated that the discussions will be enjoyed by novice and expert alike. "This is your chance to learn about music of all shapes and sizes," he stated.

Returning to the subject of modern music, Mr. McLean mentioned that the general public is accepting so-called modern music very well today. Musical techniques which would have scandalized early twentieth century audiences are now thought to be perfectly permissable.

Hereafter students are urged to participate more fully in the discussions testing the critics with questions concerning music in general. The next meeting will be held in two weeks, with details to be listed in the Daily at a future date.

A DISTINCTION EXISTS

The success of the McGill-Varsity weekend was marred somewhat in the eyes of the general public by the demonstration that took place on Friday night in Windsor Station. As has been the custom, McGill undergraduates arrived at the Station in order to welcome the visitors from Varsity. Mr. D. S. Thomson, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, in a letter to the President of the Students' Society, points out that these students breached the limits of accepted behaviour and caused considerable damage to the Company's property.

The students, it seems, broke through the gates to the train sheds and "seriously interfered with passengers entraining on our trains for Toronto as well as with the loading of express on these trains, resulting in a late departure . . ." Some baggage and express missed the trains because it was impossible to move trucks through the crowd on the platform. It took considerable effort on the part of the Railway employees to finally usher the students to the concourse to await the arrival of the Toronto train.

Meeting visiting teams at the station has become a traditional gesture in intercollegiate athletics and the individuals who took the time to meet the Varsity team should be commended on their interest. However, there does exist a definite distinction between enthusiasm and rowdyism; one that is easily forgotten in the midst of a celebrating crowd and the evening's excitement; yet, one that becomes all-important in these very circumstances.

The Toronto incident represents the first instance of damaged property due to the train excursion. It is hoped that a repeat performance is not forthcoming this weekend.

A CALL FOR COURTESY

Some years ago, Walt Disney produced a delightful cartoon called "Mr. Walker and Mr. Wheeler". In an incisive comment on a modern malady, it told of a kind, gentle and courteous character (Mr. Walker) who became a veritable maniac, and assumed the hideous Hyde-like characteristics of "Mr. Wheeler" once he took control of a car. The habit of reckless, selfish driving seems widespread in Montreal. The general traffic problem is worse even than in Paris where there is no speed limit, and where the police, at rush hours, throw up their hands, shrug their shoulders and go home, rather than witness the antics of "those idiots". In France, however, there is a certain gay Gallic abandon, a sense of "le Sport" which is absent in the Paris of the New World. Here the main feeling seems to be a ruthless determination on the part of the drivers to separate all pedestrians into two categories — the quick and the dead.

This comment is not aimed directly at the reckness drivers of Montreal. Rather is it a plea for the cessation of a habit, that is not only dangerous, but an example of bad road manners. At the University gates a set of lights controls the Sherbrooke Street traffic. These lights change color everry forty five seconds. Despite this short waiting time, it is becoming more and more common for a group of students en route to the Union to bunch up at the gates, and forge across Sherbrooke in a solid phalanx — against the traffic lights. In Vancouver and other cities such jay walking is punishable by a fine; in Montreal such a blind indifferrence to the rights of motorists may only be stopped by some driver with bad brakes and good insurance.

By setting an example, on home grounds, of good manners, McGill may light a tiny candle in the general gloom of Montreal's chaotic traffic situation.

WHEN COURTESY DISAPPEARS . . .

Letters to the Editor

An Elaboration

Mr. Phil Coulter,
President, EUS.
Mr. Don MtcSween,
President ASUS.

Gentlemen:

In the Monday, October 24, Daily an article appeared challenging the ASUS and the EUS to a blood duel. This invitation was accepted by you both (in a rather indirect manner) in following articles replying to your respective challenges.

The CUS, however, failed to make clear the punishment should your faculties lose the race, an outcome which at present seems likely. The losers will therefore be required to rid themselves of their slovenly attire and obtain top hats and bowties, apparel more becoming the presence of Commercemen, and on their hands and knees scrub the steps of Purvis Hall with soap and nail brush until all traces of dirt, etc., are removed. Of-course you will both be expected to walk up McTavish St. to the scrubbing site in your formal attire so that the victorious Commercemen can observe the bloodless losers.

Les Tisshaw,
President, CUS.

Statistics

Sir:

On November 5, the McGill Redmen will be playing hosts to the Queen's Golden Gaels at Molson Stadium. This event is usually accompanied by considerable publicity in The Daily, and so this would appear to be an appropriate time to disclose some figures I have collected.

Three years of careful reading of The Daily show that the name "Queen's" has appeared in 243 different editions, and a total of 655 times. Of this total, 425 have been on the sports pages, and 230 on the other pages.

The important fact however is this: the word "Queen's" has been misspelled 308 times (72.5 per cent) on the sports pages, and 43 times (18.2 per cent) on the other pages. To the best of my knowledge, no other name has received such insulting treatment.

Would it be out of order to ask you to bring to the attention of your staff the fact that Queen's is spelled with an apostrophe: Q-U-E-E-N-apostrophe-S?

J. Gilbert Hill,
Medicine IV.

References Please

Sir:

I am surprised that you allow articles subject to dispute and discord to be published without even a reference to quotations. As a specific instance, I recently noticed an article in the McGill Daily which quoted St. Thomas Aquinas, and this is a particularly good example of the difficulty which would be involved if one were to check further on a quotation from his writings without a reference (his Summa Theologica alone covers 20 volumes). The lack of original references indicates that the author does not consult a prime source for information and this is quite often reflected by an unscientific and low calibre presentation. Even a secondary source as reference would give some indication of the writings consulted and perhaps add some explanation to the individual's ideas.

B. F. Boylan.

POST-MORTEMS

by IRWIN SANKOFF

The Western Mustangs are down and out, the knockout punch being delivered by the McGill Redmen last Saturday afternoon as they clobbered the Mustangs 35-17 before some 5,500 astounded onlookers. The setback dumpted the Purple and White into the league cellar for the first time in 17 years. The Western team also has had its most dismal season with Metras as coach, failing to win a game yet this year. Queen's also whipped Toronto, and just about ended the Redmen's playoff aspirations, in the other league game. McGill's only hope now is that we beat Queen's and that the Mustangs escape from the last roundup to trample Varsity. Otherwise we will have to revert to the old Dodger saying of wait till next year.

The 35 points piled up by the McGillians represents the highest total by a McGill team in exactly five years, the previous mark being a 43-15 beating which McGill gave Queen's on Oct. 30, 1950.

The Redmen offensive on the ground was the most powerful that we have seen in a long time. As an example let's look over the sequence of plays leading to Bennett's second touchdown. This outburst of sheer power was made during a driving rainstorm and wind which was blowing into the faces of the McGill team. The drive started when Western lost the ball on downs on the McGill 25. Adrian made successive gains of five and six yards through the line. Then Carr let Bob Perry carry the ball and he ripped off successive gains of five, eight and four yards. Adrian went for six and Perry for two, but a holding penalty set the Redmen back 10 yards.

Then with first down and 20 to go, Perry and Adrian each made 9 yard gains and Adrian went for another five for the first down. Perry made two and Carr switched his backs and Don Gagnon lit out around the end for 12 yards. Merdy Armstrong made four and Adrian three to put the ball on the Western 14. As the Redmen came out in running formation, Western went into a 6-4-2 defence and Carr calmly floated a pass to Bennett, all by his lonesome for the McGill major.

The two Carr-to-Bennett touchdowns via the air were indentical to the four TD's which the same combination scored against Toronto. This play originates out of the T-formation with Carr taking the snap and fading back with three men blocking for him. Bennett heads straight downfield and then flares towards the left, usually with two men in hot pursuit. Carr's pass is taken on the dead run and by this time Bennett's speed has usually left the defenders looking at his heels. The play worked very well against Western and provided Metras with an early and unpleasant Halloween surprise.

The McGill line played what was perhaps their best game of the season. Vaughan McVey and John Larsen in particular had a field day in the Western backfield. They each blocked a kick and missed picking off a couple of others. Buster Brown along with Rae Brown, Joe Cromin, Len Sigurdson, Bert Bertrand wreaked havoc along the Western front line as they continually opened gaping holes for the McGill backs to go through. The downfield tackling by those fellows, along with the support of Sam Yuska, John Tilley and Bennett, was exceedingly vicious, and several Western players had the wind knocked out of them when they were hit by the Redmen. It got so bad that the Western players didn't seem to want the ball and started throwing laterals to no one in particular. On these plays the Redmen eventually ended up with the ball.

The linebackers and safetymen also played solid games with Des Desimone, Bill Picard, Don Harris, Jerry Anderson, Merv Shaw and Jimmy Grant playing great football. The punting by John Ferrabee was the best preformance put on by him this season, and he even got down under one of his kicks to belt the Western receiver and cause him to fumble.

The McGill backfielders had their biggest groundgaining day with Rick Adrian and Bob Perry picking up most of the real estate. Adrian went for 117 yards in 17 carries. That's an average of seven yards a try which is excellent in any man's league.

Perry picked up 65 yards while carrying the ball 11 times. Eventually all the backfielders managed to carry the ball as the Redmen ran up the score. Even as the game drew to a close the Redmen were still going out for another major with Jerry Anderson carrying the ball for 20 yards in two plays, but the drive fell short. Bill Picard intercepted a Mustang pass on the five as the game ended, but he just failed to cross into pay dirt.

Merdy Armstrong showed quite well as he carried the ball six times for an average gain of seven yards per try. Gagnon made 17 yards in two trys and Bob Holland went for 26 yards on four ball-carrying sojurns. John Cronin plowed for 31 yards in five tries at lugging the pigskin, while Carr carried four times for 12 yards.

In the passing department Carr threw three completed passes each to Yuska and Bennett. The total yardage gained by Yuska was 65 yards, and By Bennett 48, including the two touchdowns. Carr so far this year has now thrown seven TD passes.

The Redmen came out of the contest without any serious injuries and should have Bob Hutcheson back for the Queen's game. Hutch missed the Western game with an infected heel. The Queen's game will feature the battle for the scoring championship between Ron Stewart and Bennett. Bennett at present holds a slim one point lead. In addition the fans will have the opportunity of seeing two fine quarterbacks in action, Queen's Gus Braccia and our own Dick Carr. The Redmen will also have Buster Brown and McVey with them. They both missed the first game between the two teams which Queen's won 30-10.

Intercollegiate Scoring

Johnny Bennett of the Redmen has taken over first place in the scoring race from Ron Stewart who had been leading throughout the season. The Redmen's pass-catching end snared two passes from Dick Carr over the weekend while Stewart was held scoreless against Toronto.

Stewart and Bennet each have six touchdowns to lead the league in that department but the latter kicked one convert earlier in the season to give him a one point margin over the speedy Gael.

Two kicking specialists hold down third and fourth positions. Peter Maik of Toronto has 19 points while Jocko Thompson of Queens has 18. Maik leads the league in field goals with three and Thompson is tops in converts with eleven.

Bob Holland of the Redmen took over fifth place in the race with a nine point outburst against Western.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

The first practice for all girls interested in playing badminton will take place tonight at 7:30 pm in the Currie Gymnasium. Jean Dunkheld Miller will be on hand to assist all the girls, and especially the newcomers. A round robin tournament will also be played. Recquets and birds will be supplied to all.

The final tryout for the watershow will take place this Wednesday, Nov. 2 at 8:00 pm in the Currie pool. Anyone who wishes to swim in the show but can not make it tomorrow night is asked to contact Joan Orser, by placing a notice on the noticeboard. Girls do not have to be expert swimmers as there are openings in several of the big production numbers. Routine practices start Nov. 3. This is the last chance for girls to take part in the watershow tryouts.

On Saturday afternoon on the Lower Campus the McGill Women's soccer team played a scoreless draw with the MacDonald College Girls. This was the second game of the home and home series, the first game also ending in a 0-0 score. The closest McGill came to scoring in Saturday's game was on a penalty kick by Babs Gibeault.

Bird in the Bank

There's a parakeet in Georgia that opened a Savings Account with an initial deposit of $15. This represents one week's pay from a jewellery store which put the bird on the payroll after winning a contest for repeating the store's slogan "It's okay to owe Kay". An imprint of the bird's foot was used as identification, and as it has virtually no expenses, the bird should be able to bank his entire pay, except for tax and pension deductions. Whenever he makes a deposit, he perches on a teller's shoulders and chirps wolf calls.

Though we've had several unusual creatures on the books of the Royal Bank, we count no parakeet among our customers. We DO have quite a few McGill people, though - all of them the nicest birds we could hope to meet. We're always glad to add more McGill names to our books, so if you'd care to open an account, drop in. No foot prints required. Royal Bank branches nearby include Peel & Sherbrooke, St. Catherine & McGill College, St. Catherine & Stanley, Sherbrooke & Bleury, Sherbrooke & Guy and Sherbrooke & Fort. The Royal Bank of Canada.

Morocco is in a completely different situation. Any political decision also affects religion. The French made a very serious mistake in depositing the Sultan. It amounts to the same thing as deposing the pope.

The French are very numerous in Morocco and they want to establish a French community and a French way of living. Some Moroccans are opposed to the French way of life and are rousing the masses against the French. They are using the Moslem idea of a Holy War to try to drive out the French. The French are unable to do anything because the religious factor is a very difficult one to work against.

The third state is Algeria. It is is an integral part of France and sends delegates to the French assembly. In theory, every Algerian is a French citizens. In practice this does not work out perfectly. If the French government would have to pay social benefits to the Algerian like all other citizens they would go broke in no time at all. On the other hand they are exempt from compulsory military service, pay less taxes and have a few other such privileges.

This would require all arts and science students to pick up membership cards at registration, and then get them signed by the society secretary. A paragraph would be added to the student instruction sheet, to this effect, he said.

SKIERS PLAN EARLY TRIALS

A meeting for all those interested in trying out for the McGill ski team will take place this Thursday, Nov. 3, in room 32 of the Currie Gym at 1 pm. At this meeting a team captain will be elected, and the training program, which is already underway, will be outlined.

All male students, including freshmen, are eligible to participate in CIAU and EISA ski meets. Last year McGill won the intercollegiate championship, and it is hoped that this year's team will repeat this performance. The team plans to compete in several carnivals and meets throughout the winter and it looks like a busy season.

Some of the highlights of the team's schedule are: the Dartmouth Winter Carnival at Hanover N.H. in the beginning of February, as well as the St. Lawrence Winter Carnival, The McGill Winter Carnival and the CIAU championship meet.
